Historical Note

The Vincent Astor Foundation was founded in New York City in 1948 by (William) Vincent Astor, a great-great-grandson of John Jacob Astor (1763-1848), the fur trader and financier who founded the Astor family fortune in America. At the time of the elder Astor's death in 1848 his estate, the bulk of which consisted of vast real estate holdings in New York City, was valued at $20 million, making it the largest accumulation of privately owned capital in America. This wealth was managed and passed on to succeeding generations by his descendants: a son, William Backhouse Astor (1792-1875), a grandson, John Jacob Astor II (1822-90), and a great-grandson, John Jacob Astor III (1864-1912), the father of Vincent Astor. (Another grandson, William Waldorf Astor, settled in England with his own share of the Astor family fortune).

When his father died in the Titanic disaster of 1912, Vincent, a nineteen-year-old student at Harvard, inherited the family fortune. Assuming his new status as head of the American branch of the Astor family, he immediately resigned from the university to take up the now venerable task of managing the inherited wealth. Quickly mastering the skills of business management, he embarked upon a lengthy and successful career in New York City, during the course of which he acquired numerous properties including the St. Regis Hotel and Newsweek Magazine. He also was elected to serve on several boards of directors of major business and charitable organizations. During World War II he was appointed by President Roosevelt to the rank of captain in the United States Naval Reserve. As befitted his wealth and ancestry he played a prominent role as member of New York's social elite. Although not a dedicated philanthropist in his own right, he established in 1948 the Vincent Astor Foundation "for the relief of human misery", which under the stewardship of his wife, Brooke Russell Astor, was to make the Astor name for almost half a century synonymous with compassionate, imaginative and constructive giving.

As daughter of John Henry Russell, a major general in the Marine Corps and former High Commissioner to Haiti, Mrs. Astor spent many of her early years abroad. At age eleven she returned to America from China where she had spent four years and had learned to speak Chinese. Before her marriage (1953) to Vincent Astor she had led a relatively sheltered life as a member of New York's social elite, although for several years (1946-56) she was employed as feature editor of House and Garden magazine and contributed articles to other magazines including Town and Country and Vogue. An early marriage at age seventeen to John Dryden Kuser by whom she had one son, Anthony, ended in divorce. Her second marriage (in 1932) to Charles Henry Marshall lasted until the latter's death in 1952. (Her son, Anthony, adopted the surname Marshall). During her remarkable career as philanthropist and foundation executive she has also served on numerous boards of directors of charitable and cultural institutions and has received many awards, honors and honorary degrees in recognition of her distinguished services to the social, cultural, and civic life of New York. She has authored four books, a novel (The Last Blossom on the Plum Tree, 1986), a fable (The Bluebird Is at Home, 1965), and two autobiographical works (Patchwork Child, 1962; and Patchwork Child – Early Memories, 1993).

When her husband died in 1959 leaving $65 million (one-half of his estate) to the Vincent Astor Foundation, Mrs. Astor's life was transformed. For the next nearly thirty-five years she was to dedicate a large portion of her time and energy to the stewardship of the Foundation and to the achievement of its philanthropic goals.

Elected president of the Foundation in January of 1960, Mrs. Astor and her board of directors quickly established the principles which were to guide it for the remainder of its existence. With few exceptions they were to make grants only to charitable and non-profit organizations located within the five boroughs of New York City. In this way they hoped to pay tribute to the Astor family's historic association with the city where so much of its wealth had originated. By supporting public and private educational, cultural and social welfare institutions, they would also strive to enhance the life of all of the citizens of the city, rich and poor alike. Adding her own unique touch to Foundation policy, Mrs. Astor insisted as a matter of principle on making personal visits to all prospective grantees before submitting their proposals to her board for approval. "We go and see...we never give to anything we don't see" she once remarked in her charmingly disarming way. Getting to know her grantees personally was for her not only a managerial obligation but a source of deep joy and satisfaction as well. During the course of her presidential tenure Mrs. Astor, accompanied by her director, Linda Gillies, visited a multitude of grantees and prospective grantees throughout the city from the humblest housing sites in the South Bronx to the most prestigious cultural institutions in Manhattan. Her objective, she avowed, was not to "change the world", an admittedly impossible task, but "... to make a difference in various areas from teenage gangs to housing, parks and museums; to the Astor Home for Children to care of the aged; to education, hospitals and medicine; to the preservation of historic buildings and gardening on city lots." The "differences" she made through her passionate and dedicated philanthropy were to redound to the benefit of all New Yorkers.

During the lifetime of Vincent Astor the Foundation had been relatively inactive. Annual disbursements of approximately $175,000 were made to Mr. Astor's favorite charities especially the Astor Home for Disturbed Children (which he founded in 1952 in memory of his father); the New York Hospital (on whose board he had served for several decades); and The New York Public Library (which his forebear had helped to found). In the ensuing years under Mrs. Astor's guidance these institutions, and most especially the American Museum of Natural History, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, The New York Public Library, the New York Zoological Society, Rockefeller University and The South Street Seaport, the city's "crown jewels" as she called them, were to receive very large grants of the Foundation's funds.

The social problems of the needy and less fortunate were also of concern to Mrs. Astor and her board of trustees. During the 1960's the Foundation made major contributions to programs directed towards the prevention of juvenile delinquency, including grants to the United Neighborhood Houses for the support of youth programs at local settlement houses, and to the Boys Brotherhood Republic for the construction of a clubhouse for underprivileged children. In depressed areas recreational parks, or "outdoor living rooms" as Mrs. Astor called them, were also funded and major support was given to a capital construction program in the Bedford-Stuyvesant area of Brooklyn aimed at reducing urban blight there.

Bio-medical research was also supported through the endowment of Astor Chairs in clinical research at Cornell University, Rockefeller University, and the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. During its latter years the Foundation also funded many community efforts to preserve the city's historic landmark buildings.

During the thirty-five years of her remarkable stewardship Mrs. Astor and her board presided over the funding of literally hundreds of projects and programs designed to improve the quality of life in New York City for all of its citizens. They also oversaw the disbursement of the last accumulation of Astor family wealth in America available for philanthropic purposes. By the end of 1997 the Foundation had spent the remainder of its endowment and the corporation was dissolved.

Series Descriptions

SERIES I. GRANTS FILES (CONTAINERS #1-234)

The grants files are arranged chronologically from 1960 to 1997 and alphabetically (within the year) by title of organization receiving grant funds. The correspondence is both incoming and outgoing. Through the spring of 1974 the correspondence is that of Allan W. Betts as vice president, and Robert C. Bickford, as director. From the spring of 1974 onwards the correspondence is that of Linda Gillies as director of the Foundation. The correspondence is with executive directors, educators, religious leaders, corporate executives, city government officials, financiers, the Foundation's legal counsel, and persons prominent in public life, relating to the awarding and administration of financial grants to charitable and non-profit institutions mainly in New York City. (Correspondence regarding grants extending over several years is frequently filed in the folder containing the initial grant year). Correspondence addressed to Mrs. Astor as president of the Foundation was routinely answered by the director although Mrs. Astor in some instances responded personally. Included are letters to Mrs. Astor from medical students and other recipients of Vincent Astor scholarships thanking her for her generosity. Many of the letters report on academic progress and mention personal matters (especially those from students at Cornell University Medical College).

Included in the files are numerous internal administrative documents including grant applications, grant authorization letters outlining the grant's terms and conditions, grant summary sheets, past grants profile sheets, and payment vouchers. There is also an abundance of documents relating to the grantee organizations, including grant proposals, progress reports, interim and final reports, financial statements, audit reports, annual reports, newsletters, informational brochures, architectural plans, blueprints, and occasional photographs of persons and events. Most files also contain photocopies of IRS Form 990 (Return of Organization Exempt from Income Tax).

Correspondence with prominent persons is scattered throughout the grant files series. The Astor Home for Children files during the 1960's contain letters from Francis Cardinal Spellman, and later, from Terence Cardinal Cooke. The Riis Park file (in Box #8) contains letters to Mrs. Astor from Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Lyndon Baines Johnson, John L. Loeb. and Ira S. Robbins (the file also contains an original letter by Robert Lowell dated July 4, 1887, to "My Dear Cousin Mary Clare"). The Buchanan School Playground file (Box #10) contains a letter (Oct. 4, 1967) by Mrs. Lyndon Baines Johnson.

The Bedford-Stuyvesant Development Corp. file (in Box 11) contains a copy of a letter (April 17, 1967) from Mrs. Astor to the editor of the Washington Post in which she vigorously objects to an allegation published in the Post that the Foundation was motivated by political considerations in its awarding of grant funds.

SERIES II. BOARD OF TRUSTEES (CONTAINERS #235-263)

The board of trustees met in the spring and fall (or winter) of each year and more frequently as business required. The records are arranged into trustee meetings; minutes books; and October reports to the board of trustees.

The records of trustee meetings (Containers #235-246) consist of agenda and background papers compiled by the executive director and staff to assist board members in preparing for forthcoming meetings of the board. Included are agenda for regular meetings; agenda for annual meetings of members; summaries of grants recommended by the grants committee; lists of grants authorized and grants refused; financial statements; and papers relating to miscellaneous legal and other matters. Included also are some draft minutes of regular meetings of the board and annual meetings.

The minute books (Containers #247-262) contain the original official minutes of meetings of the board of trustees with collateral documents appended to them. In the earlier period during the presidency of Vincent Astor, the minutes focus on the election of trustees, the receiving of contributions from Vincent Astor in the form of cash, shares, and real properties, portfolio management, and matters relating to grant policies and procedures. Appended to the minutes are numerous collateral documents including the Foundation's constitution, by-laws and certificate of incorporation (in Container #247); buy and sell recommendations of the investment or finance committee; lists of purchases and sales of common stock; balance sheets; statements of receipts and expenditures; and audit reports. Appended to the minutes of March 9, 1961 (Container #250) are documents relative to an agreement between the Foundation and Philip L. Graham of the Washington Post for the sale to the latter of 179,000 shares of common stock of Newsweek, Inc. The minutes for January 27, 1960 record the election of Brooke Russell Astor as president of the Foundation following the death of her husband, Vincent Astor. The bulk of the minutes under the presidency of Mrs. Astor reflects the on-going work of the Foundation in approving and awarding the case load of financial grants to charitable and non-profit institutions and organizations, the management of the Foundation's investment portfolio, and other routine matters.
