Guide to the

Albert Shaw papers

1827-1953 (bulk 1890-1947)

MssCol 2736

Compiled by Cate Putirskis, March 2011

Summary

Creator: Shaw, Albert, 1857-1947

Title: Albert Shaw papers, 1827-1953 (bulk 1890-1947)

Size: 251.91 linear feet (237 boxes, 45 volumes)

Source: Donated by Virginia Shaw English, 1997; Additions purchased from Jerry N. Showalter, 2008-2009

Abstract: The Albert Shaw Papers contain correspondence (professional and personal); files concerning the books, articles, and speeches Shaw authored, administrative records and articles from the Review of Reviews; and many records of Shaw's personal life, including financial records, scrapbooks, photographs, ephemera, and his notes on the Shaw family's genealogy, as well as Shaw's personal memoirs. Materials range in date from 1827 to 1953, with the majority of the records falling between 1890 and 1947.

Albert Shaw (1857-1947) was an editor, journalist and scholar who spent most of his career as the editor and publisher of the Review of Reviews, a digest of progressive thought and political analysis. Shaw's principal interests were the improvement of municipal government, the relationship of business and organized labor, agricultural reform, international affairs, and contemporary politics and economics, topics which he wrote and spoke on frequently.

Access: Advance notice required. Apply at <http://www.nypl.org/mssref>

Copyright information: Copyright retained by any document's creator.

Preferred citation: Albert Shaw papers, Manuscripts and Archives Division, The New York Public Library

Surrogates available: Portions of this collection are available on microfilm.

Processing note

Where possible, additions to the collection have been integrated where they fall intellectually within the collection description, though in some series and subseries, added files did not fit readily into the existing collection arrangement and were instead listed following all existing records.

Series I. Correspondence, 1827-1953, undated (95 boxes, 45 volumes)

This series, comprised of both incoming and outgoing correspondence, reflects Shaw's professional activities (primarily his work with the Review of Reviews), as well as his personal life and the lives of several of his family members. Correspondence is generally arranged either chronologically or by topic (variations occur from one subseries to another), and since Shaw did not keep a sharp distinction between his professional and personal activities, there is a general intermingling of both types of the correspondence.

Correspondence added from later additions follows the original chronological listings in subseries.

I.A. Incoming (General), 1876-1947, undated (47 boxes)

Correspondence in this subseries concerns primarily editorial and business matters relating to the Review of Reviews, as well as from Shaw's earlier professions as a journalist and educator.

III.D. Lincoln Books, 1923-1943 (9 boxes)

Shaw did extensive research on Abraham Lincoln, and used his research to write several articles and perhaps as many as four separate books. However, like many of Shaw's other book projects, not all of these books made it to publication. Shaw kept all of his Lincoln work together and titled with just "Lincoln," so it is often impossible to determine which Lincoln project a draft or file of notes corresponds to. Where possible, files have been assigned to the publication Shaw indicates they belong to (comprising the first two subseries); all other files on Shaw's Lincoln research and work are located in the third (General) subseries.
